

What do I want to learn or understand better?

Since only one person was handling the backend, I am reading up on that and will probably focus more on that part. Even if it's not what I think is the most interesting, I am looking forward to increasing my understanding of how server communication works.

How can I help someone else, or the entire team, to learn something new?

Since I have moved from frontend to backend I have not learned enough in either to be able to help someone else learn more about it, other than learning together with others and discussing.

What is my contribution towards the team's use of scrum?

Participating, offering my perspectives and thinking of user stories is about all I am helping with in the scrum department at the moment.

What is my contribution to the teams deliveries?

I have spent this week getting up to speed with the backend. Hopefully I will be able to contribute more in this department come next week, but for now I have created a bit of content while learning about Spring Boot and servers.
